Global Citizenship Education (GCED), the political pedagogical practice for a critical, solidaristic and responsible inhabitation of our shared Homeland Earth (Morin), is becoming an ever more important perspective in today's interconnected and globalized world.

To enhance and support this practice and to (re)search for practical examples of lived Global Citizenship (Education), the UNESCO Chair for GCED at the University of Klagenfurt, Austria, has started the Global Campus Online, a space where researchers, practitioners, activists, artists and students from various world regions and backgrounds come together to discuss the pressing issues of the 21st century and their implications for education.

In this session, we will shortly present the outlines of the project, followed by a discussion with two participants of GloCo.
