Disaster-risk Reduction of Climate Communication and Education: Exploring Fossil Fuel Industry's Reach into Information and Education Spaces

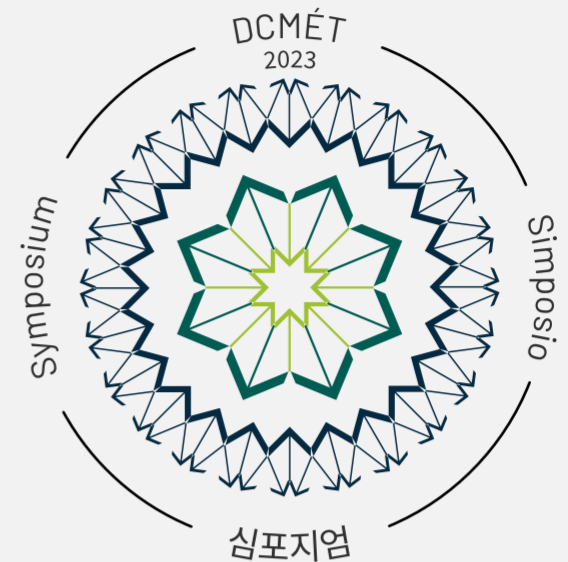

English / Anglais / Inglés / 한국어

Simultaneously interpreted in Spanish / Interprété simultanément en espagnol
Interpretado simultáneamente en español / 스페인어로 동시통역

This session aims asks: If people do not know about socio-ecological challenges caused by human actions, will they recognize the urgent need to deal with them? The concept of disaster-risk reduction will be explored in terms of how disaster-risk reduction is typically practiced in terms of emergency preparedness for climate impacts - both mitigation and adaptation strategies - through school educational processes in order to enhance public awareness and public access to information.

Disaster-risk reduction will be expanded upon in terms of access to climate change information and education, and how pro-fossil fuel influence and communication strategies are targeting publicly-available information and public education spaces.

The Canadian Association of Physicians for the Environment (CAPE) has commissioned a report (to be released in the fall of 2023) exploring the influence of oil and gas companies on K-12 climate education, primarily through funding various education nonprofits in Canada. This report will be examined in this session.
